Nebraska’s Early Childhood Grant Program grew out of a pilot program that started serving children in 1992, and was expanded through state legislation in 2001. The state provides funding to public schools and educational service units, but services are also offered through partnerships in settings such as private child care centers, family resource centers, and Head Start agencies. Nebraska requires collaborative funding efforts for the program, and all grantees are required to cover at least half of their program costs using other federal, state or local sources.

The Early Childhood Grant Program mostly serves 3- and 4-year-olds, although children may be served as early as 6 weeks of age. At least 70 percent of each program’s funding must be used to serve children meeting at least one of four criteria set by the state. These priority areas are: children eligible for free or reduced-price lunch, English Language Learners, children born prematurely or with low birth weight, and children of teen parents who have not completed high school. A sliding payment scale is used for children who do not meet these risk factors.

The state adopted the Nebraska Early Learning Guidelines in 2005, and will offer training to all state prekindergarten grantees in the use of these early learning standards. Nebraska passed legislation in 2005 allowing 4-year-olds in approved school-based prekindergarten programs to be included in the K-12 state aid formula.
